Gentlemen:

I received the enclosed letter from the American Express agent here asking for the payment of $3.50 on the money order # AY5261528 issued by them on July 19, 1943.

You can see from the enclosed copy of a letter which I received from Mr. R. S. Yetter of your company o on August 20th, notifying us that this money order #AY-5261528 was misplaced by your Company and asked us to send another one in place of that--which I did on August 26th money order #AY-5575074, and asked the American Express Co. to stop payment on the first one.

The book came to us beginning of September. Then in later part of Sept. I received another book of the same copy. I thought probably it was sent by mistake; but I decided to keep this and I mailed the remittance to you--American Express money # AY5590200 for $2.80, deducting seventy cents (70¢) from $3.50 for the 10% discount (35¢) on each copy as notified to us by Mr. R. S. Yetter on his letter of June 3, 1943

Thus I have paid to you the following money order for the two copies.

1st.	July 19, 1943	#AY-5261528	$3.50
2nd.	Aug. 26, 1943	#AY-5575074	$3.50
3rd.	Sept. 30,1943	#AY-5590200	$2.80

I see that you have found the first money order and have endorsed and deposited that on Sept. 23rd.

So, please send me the refund of $3.50 at your earliest date as I have to pay this amount to the American Express Co.

Thanking you for your kind attention.
